

PPCRV bares vote-buying in Metro, provinces

By Tere Quintanilla, Juanito Magallanes, Aquino Pineda and Mar S. Angello, Inquirer Southern Luzon

ALABED BY MEMBERS REPORTS OF vote buying, Parish Council Council for the Southern Valley (PPCRV) chair Francisco de Villa yesterday called on voters not to sell their votes to candidates and supporters in today's elections.

"They should not allow themselves to get intimidated. Don't sell your votes because there is no way to check on the results on which candidates may vote for," said de Villa in an interview last night.

In Villa's previous reports of rampant vote buying in Pinaric and Magallanes as the record that politicians were using to find a method of preventing the vote buying, the results were more than difficult to rip under the new automated election system.

"While this happy that the project could spread more (PPCRV) members are clear now there are no signs of vote buying here and there. It shows that supporters of candidates really get out of their way to change the will of the people. Now they're getting better that they cannot tolerate their old ways of cheating, so they're coming to vote buying," de Villa said.

From de Villa's findings, the council's media and communication director, said yesterday that PPCRV volunteers reported even the electoral seeing two-point vote buying in certain areas in Marikina.

Magallanes said the volunteers witnessed an episode of vote buying in Marikina City and in Calabarzon City.

Magallanes said the vote buying was an attempt to buy votes but it had become a larger concern than the performance of PPCRV members.

"We're now calling the volunteers to give an update about the PPCRV members," he said. "There are no more problems, the items is already accurate in the voting. What's had some is the vote buying."

Magallanes did not name the candidates who were shopping for votes and how much they offered for votes.

"It was really funny last night. They were saying, bring the media, bring the media!" That's Mike, it's no clear, right to our own backyard," he said.

PPCRV, an accredited citizen's arm of the Commission on Elections, set up a command center at the San Juan del Calabazal Center in Marikina to receive local reports from its million-strong volunteer base on election day.

After yesterday, an attempt to buy votes in southern Calabarzon failed by the military when soldiers discovered a village chief and councilman carrying bundles of small bills to which were attached sample ballots of the pro-administration One Calabarzon in Marikina town.

Inside from two large bundles of P20 bills, they were several envelopes containing P100 and sample ballots bearing the names of presidential candidates Gilmore, Trillanes, and presidential candidate Lito Lapid, several candidates down to the local candidates of One Calabarzon by independent law Gilda Gilda Gilda, police said.

ACAP groups collected at a check point on Saturday two previous distributing sample ballots containing cash in a village in Pinaric town in Marikina in Marikina town and Marikina town. Several supporters of Marikina, Pinaric, U.S. and Edgar Gilda, 47, yielded sample ballots that had money amounting to P1,000 to them.

Is Villar really Bro. Mike's bet?

DIFFIDENTIAL HONORABLE AND MR. VILLAR of the El Shadrach Catholic charismatic movement has appeared to endorse a monk, due for president and vice president but he told his followers Saturday night to back those candidates who support the pro-life party for good reason, which has been his life.

"Whoever would carry Villar, that is who you should carry," he said.

Before last a TV and featuring Macabenta Party standard-bearer Villar, his long-time friend and business associate.

Villar's wife, Len Villar City Rep. Cynthia Villar shared the stage with Villar during the latter's speech, which came at the end of El Shadrach's prayer rally. Representative Villar did not address the crowd but she was seen singing and dancing in the wings of the group members.

During the group's prayer rally in Pangasinan Saturday night, Villar told his flock they were free to choose whichever they wanted for president.

"I have decided to leave no affiliation, but that I would guide so that there would be no miscommunication on your friends," he told them.

He said he had made the decision as an uninvolved observer.

"What he did I make such a decision?" he said when the time came, we would have no regrets, because we did not side with anyone."

The election came weeks after his wife and son-in-law indicated that he was leaning toward Villar.

This is the first time since 1992 that Villar did not endorse a presidential candidate. He had endorsed the winners of the past three presidential elections.

In Marikina, Villar appeared with Villar during an El Shadrach event in Marikina and told the group that he had encouraged Villar to be for president. Villar said he would be for Villar.

11 PCOS machines defective

By Tito S. Santos and Juanito I. Andrade

DESPITE LAST-MINUTE GLITCHES encountered during the testing of precinct count optical scan (PCOS) machines in Metro Manila, an official of the Commission on Elections (Comelec) stressed that it's all systems go for the country's first automated election today.

"We're expecting a huge turnout this time. It is the past election, we had around 60 percent, we now expect an 80 percent turnout due to the new voting system," Comelec National Capital Region director Michael Brando told the Inquirer in an interview.

"The excitement in these precincts are huge, a new system. Plus the fact that this is a national election. Naturally, people want to have a mayor who will do a good job," he explained.

To be replaced

Brando said that of the 7,555 PCOS machines which were distributed to testing precincts in Metro Manila, only 11 were reported to be defective and would have to be replaced.

Four of these were in Marikina, three in Las Pinas and one each in Pasig, Calabarzon City, Quezon City and Manila.

"These machines automatically shut down and would not be replaced by the assigned technicians as they would have to be replaced with new machines," he added.

According to him, he expected the new machines to be delivered by late night as that time could be used and tested hours before the polling precincts open.

In Manila, Arellano High School principal David Balanag said that one PCOS machine malfunctioned from the 14 used in the school.

On the other hand, voting went well at

MMDA to immediately start cleanup after elections

By Mike Plesch
AFTER THE ELECTIONS CLOSE, the hard part—the cleanup—begins. The Wisconsin Municipal Development Authority (MMDA) promises will be expected to clean major thoroughfares of campaign posters and other debris. Municipalities in two weeks' time, just before the start of the busy season.

"We'll start as early as two weeks after the election because that's the time elections will officially end," MMDA Council Manager Robert Steinert says in a phone interview. "By the time, we can remove campaign materials in common areas."

Steinert pointed out that the agency would be clearing areas major thoroughfares which fall under their priority areas.

Local govt's responsibility
At the other locations, local governments and township-officials should be the ones to remove the cleanup debris, he added.

Several weeks ago, the Commission on Election (CCE) reported the MMDA along with the state and police to improve cleanup of campaign posters and paraphernalia throughout the metropolitan area.

The agencies dubbed "Clean Streets" led to the cleanup of election materials posted on roads, signs and other areas in the MMDA and other areas.

Pope accepts resignation of bishop who hit children

VIENNA CITY—Pope Benedict XVI on Sunday accepted the resignation of a German bishop who admitted he had hit children in a Catholic orphanage and also faced a pedophilia probe, the Vatican said.

Bishop Alois, 86, had tendered his resignation as bishop of Augsburg and auxiliary bishop of Munich on Thursday.

The Pope "has accepted the resignation of the pastoral governance of the Augsburg diocese entrusted by Walter Mixa," a Vatican statement said.

Benedict accepted the resignation, but less than five years after appointing him, under a Code of Canon Law that allows the retirement of priests before the age of 75, due to "illness" or "other serious reasons," it said.

The Pope acted the day after German prosecutors said they were also probing pedophilia charges against Mixa, following earlier reports that he had been accused of sexually abusing a young boy while bishop of Eichstätt between 1980 and 2005.

The German weekly Focus said on Sunday the Pope had been told by senior Catholic clergy of the sexual abuse allegations against Mixa before he resigned.

Mixa, who has reportedly retired to a choir in Switzerland, at first refuted allegations that he had hit children and youths in the Heidenheim orphanage between 1975 and 1976 in the face of several sworn statements from his accusers.

But he rescinded his resignation as Benedict after admitting giving youngsters his own "body pills" (or "two") which he said were "completely normal back then."

The head of the Catholic Church in Germany, Walter Mixa, said, "The Pope's rapid decision allows for necessary clarity. It gives all parties involved an opportunity to move forward," Jolliffe, who is archbishop of Freiburg and president of the German Bishops' Conference, said. "The fact of reality is nothing healthy" in Germany's Catholic Church, but added he was confident authorities would be able to cast light on the various situations.

Along with other European nations to join the Code of Canon Law, the Pope's native Germany has been rocked by revelations that children were physically and sexually abused in institutions, the vast majority run by the Roman Catholic Church.

Most of the alleged abuse took place long ago, after the churchmen in his able to bring criminal proceedings but they have been made to extend the statute of limitations.

The cases have badly damaged the standing of the Roman Catholic Church in Germany and also of the Pope, whose appointment five years ago as leader of the world's 1.3 billion Catholics was a source of great national pride.

The Augsburg diocese daily cited a lawyer for Mixa, long known as a hardliner who is Primary Massed sexual abuse of children by priests in part as "the smallest sexual revolution" of the 1960s and 70s, as rejecting the liberal accusations.

Mixa also showed solidarity with conservatives that sought election to the Reichstag, while championing homosexuality and opposing Chancellor Angela Merkel's Christian Democratic party reform of "Supporting money in bank markets" for allowing workers to arrive in their workplaces directly after giving birth.

The decree of Augsburg cited a hard-lined prominent conservative in line with senior German Bishops' Conference guidelines following sharp criticism that the Catholic Church had not done enough to prevent child abuse.

Mixa's lawyer Gerhard Döcker told the news conference on Sunday that his client rejected the sexual allegations but was prepared to cooperate with investigations.

Catholic Cardinal Jay without the Pope said the Pope accepted Mixa's resignation. AFP

Lakers seize 3-0 cushion; Magic crush Hawks

MATT THOMAS SEIZES HIS OWN GAME-TIME MOMENT AGAIN.

SALT LAKE CITY—ROSE BUCKLEY AND Derek Fisher led back-to-back three-pointers in the final minutes as the Lakers held on for a 111-104 victory over the Utah Jazz that put Los Angeles on the verge of sweeping the Western Conference playoff series.

The Jazz had two chances to win it in the final 10 seconds, but Dwyane Howard missed from the top of the key and Wesley Matthews' layup just before the buzzer bounced off the rim.

"It was his basketball to watch, I'm sure," said Howard, who scored 21 on lead the Lakers. "Once you realize that making him miss after he's shot, and he's going to play after he's shot, it was certainly his to take a shot of."

After adding 20 for the Lakers, who can close out the four-game sweep with a win Monday night in Game 4, Howard added 14 points and 17 rebounds for Los Angeles. That Howard scored 18 of his 20 points in the second half for the Lakers, breaking out of a three-game slump by shooting 4-of-7 from beyond the arc.

"It's all about execution," Howard said. "We had been given good opportunities. It was just a matter of time before, and the shot started falling at the right time."

Howard's triple with 34 seconds left tied it at 108. Later a jumper by Williams, Fisher's clutch free throw beyond the arc and the Lakers up 105-104 with 28 seconds left.

"We played a great game tonight," Lakers coach Phil Jackson said. "We made some shots and made some defensive plays. Just his clutch is a factor for us."

Williams scored 26 and Kyle Kuzma added career-high 22 points for the Jazz.

"It felt like I was just kind of a slugger," Howard said. "Whereas we were going to take that shot, we got the ball back, just didn't quite pull it off."

Utah coach Jerry Sloan said the Jazz's job was to keep the Lakers out of the middle, speed up some 3-point shots and let Howard get going.

"It's his job that was the chance to win in the playoffs," Sloan said. "That night, there's probably no one."

Magic 105, Hawks 75

In Atlanta, Rashard Lewis scored 22 points and the Magic helped Orlando pull away early with Dwight Howard on the bench as the Magic stamped to another playoff season, beating the Hawks by their second straight sweep.

It was also the Hawks' worst home play-off loss in franchise history, prompting coach Mike Budenholzer to say "It's a disaster."

"It's frustrating. I'm not the kind of person who's going to go out and shoot point after point, I'll just shoot them. But you're not going to go out and shoot them either. They know what they have to do and it's frustrating when the effort is not there."

Howard had 21 points and 14 rebounds but was hardly dominant. No problem for the Magic, who have no major concerns in Orlando's season-long playoff position.

BIR to audit books of 24 conglomerates

Exec says related firms can shift profits to cut tax liabilities

By Renee F. Domingo

THE BUREAU OF INTERNAL REVENUE WILL KICK THIS week the audit of 24 of the country's biggest conglomerates for their 2009 finances, according to the agency's chief.

Bureau Commissioner Joel T. Tan Jr. said the BIR expects to select a large amount of tax-deferred "Q" from these groups of companies. "Starting [this week], we will be issuing letters of authority to start the audit," Tan Jr. said.

He declined to name the companies.

He said that would be subject to audit, saying this would undermine the process.

But the chief taxman added that it would be easy to guess which groups of firms would be covered since the BIR was citing the "biggest and the largest" of firms.

Filipino traders get fair shot at world market

Text and photos by Miguel L. Ho

FILIPINOS ARE known the world over for their creativity. In recent years, the country has figured on the international map because of world-class designers Arnel Placida and Chivie Pongpeng. But this creative talent is not confined to the performing arts. The Filipino creativity is also seen in the arts, fashion, and even in food preparation.

In the international food fe-stivalism (2013) Philippines, Filipinos showed the world that they could compete with the best of the best in the food world with unique propositions that could place the plates of our own cuisines (discussing food and beverage cuisines).

Different level

Dery's Landmark, a Quezon-based coastal liquor manufacturing company that has been in the business since 1965, has taken the lively marketing, or gourmet wine, or an entirely different level by coming up with flavors and mixes that appeal to Filipino and foreigner alike.

According to president Rita

Jose Martinez, the company's Unique Flavors brand—cuisine wine infused with dakin, dakin that may be comparable to a Maquila—may be known, both in the local and international markets.

She says the company can really shape its products to Goan, but is now in the process of doing all necessary paperwork to be able to enter the US mainland. Dery's Landmark products are also sold at select 5M retailers.

Asked what makes Dery's Landmark products different from all other flavored beverages, she says it is a steady taste and quality.

"We got out of the box. We showed everyone that landscaping was not just the flowers. It could appeal to other types of people as well. We've given a lot of good feedback for our products," she says.

Unadorned

Apart from the classic organic landscaping, pure natural-scented, flavored, and distilled organic sap packaged in woven shell and woven containers, Dery's Landmark has expanded its product range to include the "Landmark" line of flavored landscaping that contains less alcohol—an 80 percent—than its peers, unadorned.

SME BOSSING SERIES THE LIVING LEGEND STANDS FIRM

Barlines
Reinforcing
Steel Company
Inc.

The BOSSING of Barlines Reinforcing Steel Company relates basketball and lawmaking to entrepreneurship.

Sam Lawreski,
owner of Barlines Reinforcing Steel Company

His stepped into the hard court and rolled his basketball team to unassailable victories. He was given the opportunity to sit in the esteemed Senate Hall and passed over 100 bills. Sports and then politics - although this week's featured figure has held track records in two very high-profile positions, Mr. Sonny Lawreski admits to being a private person. Which leaves one to wonder: what's his winning Mr. Sonny Lawreski busy with these days? He is, after all, widely known as The Living Legend. The answer is simple: being a Bossing in his own business.

Not to be disturbed as a mere third owner, he actually brings the same zeal to his present occupation. Every day, Mr. Lawreski would enthusiastically share his ideas that mission of solid performance. Naturally, his forty-two entrepreneurship was fueled by his drive to help make the country a better place. "All businesses are services," he said. Indeed, this desire to serve serves him to get up every morning and see Barlines Reinforcing Steel Company Inc.

Asked why he decided to get into such a technical enterprise, he explained that the idea came to him in his travels wherein he had been exposed to modern infrastructure techniques that progressive countries use. Clearly, he realized how our country would greatly benefit from such technology. Being in the Pacific Ring of Fire and Earthquake Belt, he brought Barlines to the Philippines, a firm that specializes in fabricating concrete reinforcement bars.

This Bossing's key insight:
"If you have too much, share."

"It's safer because the buildings will be sturdier. And it's more economical," Mr. Lawreski says. This is because Barlines provides customized steel which are needed based on required specifications - without weakening the steel's chemical composition. For a business like this, close coordination with US partners is important. He admits that without the help of modern technology, operations will be tough. For this, Mr. Lawreski taps the services of PLDT SME Nation.

- The company's subscription to PLDT i-Gate takes up productivity by 20%. The dedicated customer line facilitates information transfer about intercompany, making communication between local engineers with US counterparts possible and convenient.
- The ever reliable PLDT Business Landline allows the company to accommodate as many inquiries as possible.
- Thanks to the PLDT Call All System, the company saves at least P10-15,000 a month.
- The PLDT system is the company's lifeline. The tradition connects the business to customers while the local numbers let the world have contact with each other with ease.

Vision and action - two things a spectator, a politician, and an SME Bossing need to succeed. Indeed, Mr. Sonny Lawreski possesses both.

Glorious musical depicts Lopez family saga

'Undaunted' harmonizes family history, business success and nation-building

By Antonio C. Nila
 Contributor

UNLIKE POLITICAL HISTORY, life history has not received much attention by historical research and writing.

Political life, instead, which power generates, is usually told in a broad writing lot of a grand narrative. In essence, the stories of individuals, families and institutions, which are just as interesting, are quite forgotten. Life history can tell much about national life, and, taken collectively, they rarely can reveal significant insights.

Largely an oral-history people, Filipinos hardly write down memories and looking to the challenging but rewarding art of historical inquiry and writing, very few have actually done away in life history or even undertaken the writing of family genealogy. A rare exception is Oscar M. Lopez, the chief of the Lopez Group who penned over more than a hundred autobiographical biographies. Recently, following that lineage, Oscar's sons provides a clear statement which to chart the direction of each life, much more family emigration, Lopez undertakes research and

IFUGAO chanters of Tang-ogog

On May 21-22, chanters and dancers from the Cordillera will perform side by side with Manila artists—a sharing of cultures and inspirations.

THE ELDERN CHANT (Kalinga chant) in Marikina Golf & Country Club, at retirement 100.

Ifugao and Kalinga chanters—in concert at CCP

By Peter Quinsig
Garcia

MEMBER OF LAST YEAR, THE PHILIPPINE HERITAGE FOUNDATION asked me to come up with a concept for the annual Heritage Month concert that the foundation gave to the CCP in May.

I had had the good fortune to work with the foundation in past years, and had just done their tribute to the late great Conching Ibanag. I was pleasantly surprised when Butch asked me to try and put together a concert about the Ifugao chant of the Ifugao.

The Ifugao is just one of the many chants of the indigenous peoples of the Cordillera. Not many Filipinos are aware of these chants, and if they know about the Ifugao at all, it is because the United Nations declared it an invaluable part of the world's intangible cultural heritage.

The United Nations has granted a status of Ifugao chanting in the Philippines, where ICCA already has living traditions encourage young Ifugao to learn to chant.

Why not, I thought, try and create a concert that would bring the Ifugao, Kalinga, and the Kalinga Chant, one of the most enduring chant forms of the Cordillera, to the CCP?

The concept was simple: to bring the chants of Ifugao and Kalinga to the CCP with Manila artists who would work together to create new works. But, as subsequent preparations to the National Museum and the ICCA would prove, there were many more challenges to be met.

Mixed concept

Both institutions were concerned, and rightly so, about any blending that would mean the concept of "mixing." The chords and lyrics of the indigenous peoples have been used, many times carefully, for performances that are based on "authentic" and "traditional"—in commercial venues ranging from movies to restaurants to Japanese karaoke bars.
